

DAVID KIDD
Managing Partner and Founder

David Kidd is the Managing Partner and Founder of Adirondack Growth Capital. He is responsible for all investment decisions, and he is deeply involved in the leadership and day-to-day operations of Adirondack's companies. Under David's leadership, Adirondack has achieved investment returns that rank among the top ten percent of similar investments and its companies have averaged annual revenue growth in excess of 30%.

David is currently President of Adirondack owned Nova Flex LED, a rapidly growing LED lighting company that serves the specification, commercial and residential markets. David was previously CEO of Midwest Supplies, the largest ecommerce supplier of homebrewing and winemaking products in America. After doubling revenue in two years, David led the sale of Midwest Supplies to Northern Brewer, its largest competitor, creating a clear industry leader.

Prior to founding Adirondack David was a Vice President at Lincoln International, a middle-market investment bank based in Chicago, where he completed 26 transactions in five years. Before joining Lincoln, David was a management consultant at A.T. Kearney based in Alexandria, Virginia.

David earned an MBA from Stanford University where he was an Arjay Miller Scholar. He holds a BS in Accountancy and a minor in Technology Management from the University of Illinois, graduating with Highest Honors and Bronze Tablet distinction. David is an Eagle Scout and avid supporter of the Boy Scouts of America. He currently resides in the southwest suburbs of Minneapolis with his wife, son, and daughter. In his spare time he enjoys coaching and playing hockey.
